Recommendation of the Meeting in Favor of Wm. F. Beattie as Successor of Mr. Grider as Sheriff, and in Favor of L. P. Berry as Assessor.

At a large meeting of citizens of Crittenden county, Arkansas, including among the number the bondsmen of the late Jessee S. Grider, sheriff and collector of said county, held at the par-lors of the l'eabody hotel, yesterday, the twenty-seventh instant, the following proseedings were had, to-wit: Upon motion, Henry T. Hulbert was elected chairman, and C. L. Lyles secretary, of said meeting. Upon motion of A. C. Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved family our deepest sympathies, and most cordial respect and esteem, and the hope that they will ever emulate the many virtues of their deceased relative. ST. AGNES ACADEMY.

Statement Relative to the Losses by the Recent Fire and Adjustment by the Insurance Companies. In view of the interest manifested in the alamity that recently befell St. Agnes female academy, and the character of the insurance companies holding policies on the institution and its effects, we print the following statement in connection therewith, furnished by the officers of the Planters insurance company. The Planters insurance company issued a policy of the Plante for $25,000 in favor of the St. Agnes academy, on the following property: Building, $20,000; furniture, $2,000; library, $900; organ, $100; pianos, $2000. Twenty thousand dollars of the policy was reinsured, being $2500 in each of the following companies: iremans Fund, of California; State, of Nashville; Continental, New York; Phœnix, of Memphis; Home, of Memphis; Mississippi Valley, of Memphis; Bluff City, of Memphis; Memphis City fire, of Memphis. A committee, composed of W. H. Moore, secretary the Wednesday following, is very strong.

Five or ten throusand more people will attend on Sunday than on Wednesday, and all want to attend and assist in the celebration.

Yes
Tee, composed of W. H. Moore, secretary of the Bluff City insurance company; Dr. S. Clarke, secretary of the Phanters insurance company, was apof the Planters insurance company, was ap-pointed by these companies to adjust the losses.

The first named appraisers, after a careful and impartial examination into the value of the buildings, placed the same at $6250, which amount the insurance companies agree ration of the graves of the lost and loved heroes of the Confederacy. Let the great celebration be on Sunday, the second proximo, as first announced by the committee and understood by the public. Give the working has agreed in writing with the secretary of the Planters insurance company, to replace the building for the sum of $5500 if the parties desire to have the same rebuilt. While the buildings were insured for $20,000, the appraisers find that the sum of $6250 covers all loss in this respect, as the builings were not totally destroyed. As to the excess of the insurance over the actual loss, nothing additional need be said, though it may be proper to remark, that the amount of the policy was based on those which had been previously issued. When, on the renewal of the present insurance two years ago, Mr. John G. Lonsdale, jr., secretary of the Planters, visited the mother superior of St. Agnes, he suggested that the amount of insurance on the building be reduced, but this was objected to and never accepted. Hence, Mr. Lonsdale had nothing more to do than to distribute the insurance as already given. He did, however, succeed in having the policy of $900 on the library taken. As soon as the company was informed of the value of the library and the furniture, the former by the Sisters being estimated at $10,000. It agreed, of its own accord, and without having the examination or award of appraisers, to the payment of the full amount of the pol icy. The appraisers had nothing to do with this, but were appointed to and engaged only in estimating the loss to the buildings only in estimating the loss to the buildings and damages to the pianos and organ. There is no question but what the amount allowed by the appraisers on the building, and also that granted by the Planters on the library and furniture, are just and equitable upon the basis of their policy. While it is admitted that the loss is considerable, still it must be appraisable and that much of this was boss drayman and grocer at the corner of Rayburn avenue and Clay street, was assaulted and severely cut by a negro named Lee Polk, alias Bloom, last night. The negro, who had been employed excess of loss over the amount due by insurging the grocery and the grocery and the corner of must be remembered that much of this was in property uninsured. The company is liable only for the actual amount of actual loss on property covered by its policy. Hence the excess of loss over the amount due by insurance. In this instance there is a clear loss of $9100 on the library, accepting its value at $10,000 the insurance being for $900 only. And so with the furniture, the value of which it is claimed was $8000, the insurance thereon being only $2000, thereby leaving a clear loss of $6000.

THE COTTON-TIE PATENT.

Opposition to the Extension of the Cook Patent-Action of the Cotton Exchange Yesterday

At twelve o'clock yesterday a meeting of the Memphis cotton exchange was held to protest against congress extending the Cook cotton-tie patent. The object and purpose of the meeting are seen in the following peti-tion, which is now being circulated and receiving the signatures of many of our citizens:

To Hon. Robert B. Vance, Chairman of House Committee on Patents, House of Representatives United States: DEAR SIR-The undersigned respectfully urge their solemn objection to the passage of any favorable or affirmative action by your mittee on the application of Frederick Cook, of New Orleans, Louisiana, for an enabling act to authorize the commissioner of patents to consider a further extension of the | City of Helena, 5 a.m. said Cook's patent, granted March 2, 1858, for what is commonly known as the open slot cotton-tie buckle, and for the following rea-

First-That said patent has been once extended, and has had full duration and force for twenty-one years, and the public have granted every opportunity granted to any inventor for the exclusive protection and profit contemplated by the patent laws. Second-That this patent has been abused by its owners through one of its details in combination with other patents, to monopo-lize our cotton-tie business, while it is, as a whole, of itself, not a practicable or usefu Third—That the large profits which have arisen from the monopoly referred to are far more, and in the greatest part, owing to the business sagacity which lead to the combination of various patentees with the said Cook patent, thus perfecting a practicable buckle, and the executive ability which said combi-nation manifested in introducing said buckle and iron ties, rather than to the entirely inefficient device specified by Mr. M'Cook's said patent. Fourth—As said Frederick Cook did, of his own volition, as he himself states, part with his said original patent of March 2

1858, and its extension of March 2, 1872, for considerations, which he states, seems to him, under all the circumstances, best for his then interests, that he was then fully compensated for an invention of inferior value except as made greater by the combination here named.

Fifth—That the further extension of the said Cook patent will be an intolerable burden upon the southern people, perpetrating a monopoly which will otherwise shortly expire if the representatives of their interests will be firm in their preservation against those of patentees, who have had every opportunity that a generous public could consistently grant for their enrichment.

The only argument Mr. Cook can sustain is that the extension sought is to his interest; against them are the interests of every planter and merchant, and all interested in the cotton crop of the southern States. If these monopolizing patents are permitted to expire, the manufacture of ties will sustain itself, as does every other great interest, and the profits now sought to be perpetuated to monopolists will accrue to the southern people through the manufacture, at home, at reduced rates, of ties equal to any now made

The following resolutions were presented for the consideration of the exchange: WHEREAS, Itappears that an extension for seven years of one of the fundamental patents for cotton-bale ties is now sought from congress; and whereas, this patent has already been once extended and has had a duration of twenty-one years; and whereas, this patent has been of enormous value to the owners, enriching them at the expense of our southern planters; therefore, be it Resolved, That this body respectfully r quests that the committee on patents will suspend report on the petition of Fred Cook, now pending, until the next session of congress, thereby giving the cotton-planting community time to be heard from. Resolved, That this body solemnly protests against any further extension of any patents on cotton-bale ties. Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Hon, R. B.
